Self-Identification and Impact Statement for Placement Tests

Central Carolina Community College administers the NROC placement test. This placement test is given to students enrolled in a curriculum program or to special credit students interested in taking English, Mathematics, or other courses that require an English or Mathematics prerequisite/corequisite.

Only students who meet the following criteria are allowed to take the placement test:

- Graduated high school more than 10 years ago
- Graduated from high school outside of the United States
- Completed GED or High School Equivalency in 2013 or earlier (Completed GED or High School Equivalency in 2014 to Present - you may not need the placement test)

For more information on CCCC's Placement Test, please contact Student Onboarding & Success.

Once you provide medical documentation and this Self-Identification and Impact Statement for the disability to the Office of Student Accessibility Services, they will send the accommodation notice to the assessment specialist.

The standard format for medical documentation required by Central Carolina Community College's Office of Student Accessibility Services is as follows:

- Diagnosis from an appropriate licensed professional (with signature)
- Diagnosis on official letterhead with contact information
- Information must be current (within 3 years) and include: diagnosis and symptoms, recommendation for academic accommodations, and a list of all currently-prescribed medications and side effects if not taken as prescribed
- If you have additional documentation, please feel free to submit what you have available for review by the Coordinator of Student Accessibility Services.

It is the student's responsibility to schedule placement test(s). Placement tests may be scheduled by contacting your preferred campus:
